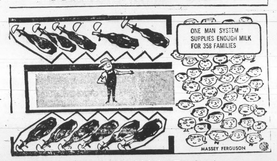
FARM PROFIT



One-Man Dairy Triples Production

Last year, Stanley Stiles, produced 1,125,730 lbs. of milk on his Gaithersburg, Maryland farm. This is enough milk to supply 358 families with 4 quarts of milk a day. That's about 3 times as much as the average dairyman, and he produces this big volume all by himself.

The secret of his big volume, described in a recent Massey-Ferguson research report, is a new herringbone system milking parlor. U.S.D.A. economists say this efficient "milk factory" makes it possible for one man to milk more cows per hour than any other system. Cost per cow is less too.

Milking time is much faster with a herringbone system because the cows are handled in groups. Udders are only about 3 feet apart and that cuts the time it takes to shift from cow to cow. Stiles has a double-six herringbone system and says he breezes through 100 cows in just two hours. "It's a far cry from our old 62-cow stanchion barn," he says. "Two men had to work hard for 2½ hours to milk 85 cows. That was more than 3½ man-minutes per cow, in contrast to only 1.2 minutes with our new system."

In addition to bigger volume and faster milking, Stiles says the herringbone arrangement makes the milking job much easier. "My back was ready to give out under the strain of the un-down, up-down of the stanchion barn," he says. "Now I can milk two hours straight and still not feel worn out."

Building and equipment costs for an up-to-date system of this kind and size come to about $22,000—just $220 per cow. The same investment in comparable housing, milking and feeding needs for a stanchion barn would accommodate only about 50 cows at a cost of $440 per cow.

Appomattox In N&W Survey

The intensive industrial survey sponsored by the Norfolk and Western is advancing speedily in the 18-county Piedmont region served by the railway, first of six general areas to be attacked in the system-wide project.

Teams of experts from Fantus Area Research, New York organization conducting the comprehensive study for the N&W, moved into the Virginia - North Carolina territory some three weeks ago, and are continuing their concentrated field work.

The men are covering the counties of Cumberland, Nottoway, Lunenburg, Prince Edward, Charlotte, Halifax, Appomattox, Pittsylvania, Campbell, Amherst, Bedford, Franklin and Henry, in Virginia, and Stokes, Rockingham, Forsyth, Person and Durham, in North Carolina. Also included in Virginia are the independent cities of Lynchburg and Martinsville.

Trained Fantus field men combine scores of factors in their evaluations. They include, in addition to available industrial sites, the costs of and access to fuel, power, water, raw materials and supplies, transportation, labor, and other particulars. Living conditions, including schools and recreation, tax structures, government services and experiences of present industrial concerns are also studied.

Preliminary reports will be made to the N&Ws' industrial department this summer. The system-wide survey will take about two years.

"If enough people, collectively, and individually, keep talking industry—keep improving the potential of their towns and counties—new plants are bound to come," the sponsors stated.

Health Dept. Clinics Here

Dr. F. J. Clements, the County Health Director, has been holding an immunization clinic at the local Health Center each Tuesday at 1:00 P. M. during the past year, to offer protection against the preventable diseases of whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus, smallpox and polio.

This clinic was patronized well in the past, but during recent months the attendance has declined. Some of the local physicians are noticing the same tendency. It it feared that some parents are not adequately protecting their families against these serious diseases.

The school officials made a careful survey of the six year old children (those to enter school for the first time in September, 1960) and each parent who elected to use their private doctor was written a letter by the Health Department urging prompt action. This was intended to give time for necessary corrections before summer. Those parents who elected to come to the Health Department Clinic were written letters to bring their children to the immunization clinic at 1 P. M., and there they were given an appointment for the pre-school clinic set for May 13, 1960. The whites are to report at 8:30 A. M., and colored at 1:00 P. M. At this clinic the nurse will get a careful history taken of the child's past health and then the doctor will examine each child and give the attending parent professional advice. No immunizations are to be administered at the pre-school examination date. Any parent who does not have a family doctor may apply to the Health Department for an appointment.

This Sunday, May 8, is Mother's Day.

Meet May 13 To Organize Golf Club

A meeting will be held here on Friday, May 13, at 7:30 P. M. at the Court House, for the purpose of organizing a Golf Club in Appomattox.

We are informed that terms of a lease for use of the 'Brick House' property of the Ferguson Estate, just west of Appomattox, on Route 460, has been agreed on, and the purpose of the May 13 meeting will be to organize the club, and act on the lease, and decide on details of club membership.

All those interested in having a golf course and club here are invited to attend this meeting. It is hoped that ladies as well as men will attend, and become members.

The hope for a golf course here has gained attention in recent weeks, and backers of the plan are encouraged by the interest shown.

It has been quite some years since Appomattox had a golf course, but some local sportsmen have been going to courses in Lynchburg and Farmville to play.

The "Brick House" property was the location of the previous golf course here. It is understood that a qualified person will be here on Tuesday to work out a course layout for a nine-hole course.

Town, County May Show Increase

An increase in population is indicated for both the Town of Appomattox and the County of Appomattox in the 1960 Census. The first stage of the Census has been completed, but the official report will be quite some time in coming from the Census officials in Washington. An appeal is currently being directed to any persons who have been overlooked, to contact the District Census Supervisor, in Petersburg, Va., and see that they are counted.

An increase in the count for the Southside District in Appomattox County, and a fair increase in the Town of Appomattox, are expected to provoide the county with a neat increase over the census of 1950.

The unofficial count for the Town of Appomattox is reported to be slightly below the 1,500 mark, and for the county slightly above the 9,000 mark. However, the official totals are subject to additional revision and will be tabulated and announced from Washington.

Anyone who has not "been counted" should immediately contact the District Census Supervisor, Petersburg, Va.
